

Resurgence

“This concept was inspired by various accounts on social media about the resurgence of sea life globally since the start of the global pandemic in spring the of 2020. One example in the Adriatic Sea shows the return of finback whales which were spotted off the cost of Croatia last month. They have not been seen this north in the Mediterranean Sea in more than 4 decades. Due to the decrease in marine traffic and noise pollution, even sea turtle populations are now booming in places like Thailand and Lebanon as well. I have also revisited the spirit of an older work I painted in the early 90s titled “Acceptance” which conveys a strong message of harmony with nature. The native component once again emphasizes our spiritual connection to all living things”.

Christopher Walker